Briotix Partners with Aon to Improve Workforce Performance

Controlling risk and improving clients competitive advantage on a global scale.

Briotix is partnering with Aon to bring more solutions to Aon's clients anywhere in the US and abroad. This partnership comes at a time when clients are increasingly challenged to find solutions for workforce performance, including ergonomics, injury prevention and human performance.

"As a leader in transforming workforce performance with onsite and technology enabled solutions, we are able to bring a full spectrum of resources to help Aon deliver return on investment and drive strategic solutions for local and global clients." Says Rick Spencer, Head of Prevention and Optimization.

Based on initial testing and case studies, this partnership has delivered significant results. More importantly, through our combined resourcing, client feedback has validated that the Aon and Briotix partnership model is second to none in the field of workforce performance.
